ORANGE AND MOUNTAINS //

bio //

Orange and Mountains is a musical conversation between two musicians, sound designers, producers, and friends: Edoardo De Din and Lorenzo Pesci. Their collaborative partnership was born out of the intermingling of their individual musical visions and, interestingly, their scientific and technical backgrounds in natural sciences and engineering. The result of this unique combination is an enthralling body of work that is inspired by various genres, artwork, and ideas, their personalities ultimately becoming the filter between their stimuli and the resulting music.

2021 marks the release of their debut full-length Drawers, a conceptual project that centers around a fascinating theme: the visual and emotional content of dreams during and after sleep. The LP features five tracks representing the nighttime dreams, with five counterparts -“diurnal” reworks—representing the awake phrase of recollection. It is a captivating project that combines organic instrumentation with synthesizers and electronics; an album that somewhat defies genre categorization. The album was released to an appreciative audience, with radio play on NeoFM (Berlin), Soho Radio London, and KEXP (Seattle) and an array of press coverage on prominent indie outlets.

In November 2019 Orange and Mountains released Frame IV - Rework From Ed Carlsen album Elusive Frames and the single Far-Out Robots Walk the Earth, Peacefully.
